
Sachiko SAKURA, Hideo IMAI, Hiroyuki ANZAI*
and Tetsuo MORIYA*

ABSTRACT The optimal conditions for the growth of ionic crystals between tetrathiafulvalene derivatives and trihalide anions in organic solvents were investigated on the basis of the cyclic voltammogram. The oxidation potential, the stability of the donor monocation radicals and the redox behavior of the anions under the oxidizing potential of the donors were discussed in relation to the chemical reaction proceeding in the solution during the crystal growth.